Learning is an endless process. People who have a genuine craving to learn realized that all knowledge is inter-related and it certainly does not lie in the realms of the education system alone.

Schools, colleges and universities certainly play a definite role in educating young minds. Yet they cannot be the final word on the subject. Completing course after course and clearing examinations and acquiring degrees alone cannot certify anybody as a scholar. Avid learners believe that learning opportunities come in the form of people, situations, experiences and even casual conversation; in other words, constant networking is the source to learn about the changes, opportunities, challenges, solutions and best use of them for upgrading self and the society.

There are common misconceptions that “Quality and Regulatory (Q&R)” compliance in any organization is the function of the Q&R department(s). Irrespective of the title, every person in an organization is Q&R Professional and is expected to do meet and exceed Q&R requirements but constantly strive for improvements.

In 1969 when the US was planning a trip to the moon, the major TV networks had crews stationed at NASA headquarters in Houston, Texas, to cover the lead up to the launch. One day the reporters and camera crews had some down time while waiting for the NASA officials to arrive at the press room. As they passed the time milling about the halls, someone noticed a janitor coming toward them with a broom and thought, “Well, nothing else to do, why don’t we film some ‘B’ footage to have on hand.” A reporter happened to have a microphone handy, so he said to the approaching janitor: “So, what’s your job at NASA?”

As the story goes, the fellow paused, leaned on his broom, looked thoughtfully into the camera and said, “My job is to help us get to the moon.” He then picked up his broom and went on his way. Whatever the apocryphal elements may be, I tell people: There in a nutshell is "quality". This is a man who sees himself not as a janitor but as part of a team helping people get to the moon.
